TO GRATIFY HIS WIFE.
An Interesting Story—A Hopeless Case Cured—A Good Reason for Happiness.
Statement of Mr. Washington Monroe, of Catskill Green County, New York.
"For many years I had suffered from a complaint which the physicians called Gravel, I had employed some of the most noted doctors without obtaining any permanent relief, and for a long time my case was regarded as hopeless. All who knew the circumstances said I must die. Finally, my wife induced me try a bottle of Dr. Kennedy's 'Favorite Remedy' which she had somewhere heard of or seen advertised. Without the slighest faith in it, but solely to gratify her, I bought a bottle of a druggist in our village. I used that and two or three bottles more, and—to make a long story short—I am now as healthy a man there is in the country.
Since then I have recommended "Favorite Remedy" to others whom I knew to have suffered from Kidney and Liver complaints; and, I assure the public, that the 'Favorite Remedy' has done its work with a similar completeness in every single instance, and I trust some other sick and discouraged mortal may hear of it and try the "Favorite Remedy, as I did. may7S,T&Th&w1m19

THE PRESS.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 31.

EVERY regular attaché of the PRESS is furnished with a Card certificate signed by Stanley Pullen, Editor, All railway, steamboat and hotel managers will confer a favor upon us by demanding credentials of every person claiming to represent our journal.

We do not read anonymous letters and communications. The name and address of the writer are in all cases indispensable, not necessarily for publication but as a guaranty of good faith.
We cannot undertake to return or preserve communications that are not used.

Canada's Opportunity.

Canada has a great opportunity to distinguish herself, and to show the United States how much better she can do things than we can. Whenever a steamboat or a railway disaster happens in this country an investigation, said to be thorough and certain to be tedious, is held. The sense of the verdict usually brought in is that nobody in particular is to blame and that the accident is attributable to the general depravity of inanimate things. These are not exactly the words used by the wise jurymen, but are the ideas conveyed. Sometimes a mild recommendation to be more careful in future is added. No one is held responsible for the loss of life, and no criminal prosecution is begun against the authors of the calamity. In a few weeks the public have forgotten all about the matter.

To-day the investigation into the causes of the disaster near London, Ontario, begins. The authorities promise to discover and bring to punishment the persons responsible for the sudden sinking of the Victoria and the loss of two or three hundred lives. Some one certainly must have been guilty of culpable negligence. If the authorities keep their promise and bring the culprits to book they will earn the thanks of their citizens, and perhaps shame us this side of the line into following their example.

THE Reform bill of 1867-68 established in England and Wales household suffrage in boroughs and occupation franchise in counties. In boroughs those who vote are (1) occupiers of dwelling-houses who have paid their poor-rates; (2) occupiers of other premises of the annual value of $50; (3) occupiers of lodgings of the annual value of $50. In counties the franchise is enjoyed by copyholders and leaseholders, and under certain conditions by occupiers of the value of 40 shillings, and also by occupiers of land rated at $60 per annum, and certain classes of tenants at will. In the Irish boroughs the rating occupation is reduced to $20. In Scottish counties the ownership franchise is $25, and in boroughs the lodger franchise is slightly modified. By the last annual return made to the House of Commons, the number of qualified electors in the United Kingdom was 2,999,229, of whom 1,148,529 were in the counties, 1,822,708 in the boroughs and 27,982 in the universities. The aggregate number of votes cast last year was 2,088,000.

THE Boston Herald's Washington letter reports Senator Logan as saying to the postmaster-general: "Mr. James, I hope you will probe the Star-Route corruption to the bottom. Never mind whom it touches; don't mind either those who will cry out that the investigation will hurt the party. Reform never ruins. You remember some years ago we investigated in Congress the sale of cadetships by Republican Representatives, and, as a result of the investigation, ousted three of them. That didn't hurt the party. That is forgotten now, and the party survives uninjured—yes, all the better for it. Since then no cadetships have been sold by Congressmen." "I will investigate, regardless of consequences," responded the postmaster-general.

GATH's explanation of President Garfield's nominating and sticking to Mr. Rober son is as follows: "Blaine did not advise Robertson's nomination to be Collector of the Port. I hear that Carl Schurz says that is the fact, and I know from two of Blaine's friends that he says he had nothing to do with it. Equally good authority tells me that Whitelaw Reid made a personal application to Garfield to send in Judge Robertson's name for Collector, on the ground that a large batch of the nominations of the kind the President had already made, had disgusted the only element in New York which meant to stand up for him."

GEN. PATRICK, Commandant at the Dayton Soldiers' Home, proclaims that territory to be subject to the rules and articles of war, and according to his construction, the inmates of the Home constitute a "garrison". The General declares that newspaper people will not be admitted to the grounds for the purpose of reporting for publication anything that they may see or hear.

HALF of the Junior class of the Indiana State University have left the institution because a professor would not permit them to go out in the midst of a recitation to fight the Sophomores, who had captured their hats and were rending them under the windows.

LARGE numbers of camels are said to roam along the Gila and Salt river bottoms in Arizona. They are supposed to have sprung from a number of the beasts which were imported into Texas in 1858 for use on the sandy plains and were turned loose when the war broke out.

THE collections for the First Ohio District for the fiscal year ending June 30th next, will aggregate $12,000,000. Cincinnati will, therefore, maintain her previous reputation of being the largest internal revenue collecting district in the United States.

THE Washington National Republican says "Colonel Robert Ingersoll may be relied on to fight the Bible (revised or otherwise) and the Democratic party." Revised or otherwise?

SENATOR MAHONE is still confident that his party will carry Virginia next Fall, and says the Bourbons cannot get a good man to head their ticket.

PHILADELPHIA Press: An "Independent" newspaper which can't turn up a Cabinet crisis a day goes to press with corroding sorrow in its soul.

THE Chinese are pouring into Australia at the rate of 50,000 a year, and measures are being agitated to stop the emigration.

Severe on the Minister.

[Rochester Herald.]

Among the inmates of the County Insane Asylum is a man who is often perfectly sensible, and when accosted at such times causes visitors to wonder why he is confined. This inmate entered into conversation, the other day, with a caller, whose dress proclaimed him a clergyman. Said the madman; "It was too bad, was it not, the killing of Grant at Chicago?"
"It was," said the minister, who followed the accepted custom of assenting to the statements of lunatics for peace's sake.
"Hayes was assassinated at Cincinnati, was he not?" again asked the lunatic.
"Yes," replied the clergyman.
"And was not Queen Victoria murdered in her palace?"
To this question from the madman the clergyman once more answered in the affirmative. The lunatic, with a "damnable iteration," named, one after the other, a dozen living royal personages, all of whom the clergyman was led to admit had been put out of the way. Finishing his catechism, the madman turned on the clergyman, and said fiercely:
"Your dress shows you are a minister, but you are the worst liar I ever met."

The Spoopendykes.

They Discuss the Political Situation.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

"Is there any truth in the story that Mr. Garfield has killed Senator Conkling?" inquired Mrs. Spoopendyke, fitting the sleeve into the armhole and running in the basting.
"No!" ejaculated Mr. Spoopendyke. "Where'd you get that? Mr. Conkling has resigned, but he ain't dead."
"I read that he had got into some difficulty with Mr. Garfield, and Mr. Garfield had dragged him all around by the ear, and finally they had to take Mr. Conkling away to save his life, though he died afterward."
"Who said so?" demanded Mr. Spoopendyke. "Where'd you read anything like that?"
"I read it on a pattern that Mrs. Winterbotham loaned me for an overskirt. I'm sure it's so," replied Mrs. Spoopendyke.
"Get the pattern," said Mr. Spoopendyke. "Show it to me!"
Mrs. Spoopendyke unrolled the pattern and commenced to read:
"The complications at Washington have assumed the most exciting shape. To-day the troubles between Garfield and Conkling culminated by Conkling seizing him by the throat and holding on while the crowd yelled with delight. Twenty to one was offered, but Garfield remains firm and declares that the Administration will not yield. This position aroused the crowd to frenzy. It is said that Conkling really desires to retire to private life, but Garfield at that moment planted his teeth in his game adversary's ear and dragged him around until the friends of Conkling were compelled to interfere to save the poor thing's life. He was taken home, but died in a few minutes.' There!,' said Mrs. Spoopendyke triumphantly. "I told you so."
"Show me!" said Mr. Spoopendyke, jumping up and seizing the pattern. "Where d'ye find such dod gasted nonsense as that? Where is it?"
"There, it begins under the ruffle, then it runs over on the band and down on the gore and ends here on the plaiting. I knew I'd seen it," and Mrs. Spoopendyke smiled pleasantly.
"What's the matter with you, you measly idiot?" howled Mr. Spoopendyke. This is where you get your political information, is it? This is the source of your intelligence on national affairs? All you want is two more patterns and a bald head to be a constitutional lawyer! Three overskirts and a pair of spectacles would make you a supreme judge! What d'ye think this is?"
"Isn't it right?" faltered Mrs. Spoopendyke. "Did you read from the ruffle over to the band and down to the gore—"
"Yes, I did, didn't I?" squeaked Mr. Spoopendyke, "and so did you didn't you? Do you know what you've got here?"
"Isn't a pat—"
"Dod gast the pattern—I mean the print! Part of it is about Garfield, part about Conkling, and the rest a dog fight out on Long Island. Know what it is now? Think you can understand it now I've explained it to you? Oh, you can! You've got brains! Some day I'm going to run a pipe in your ear and start a phosphorus factary!" and Mr. Spoopendyke danced out of the room, leaving it strewn with pattern dust.
"I don't care," sobbed Mrs. Spoopendyke, "it read all right, and the skirt fitted so nicely that I supposed the articles were put together straight. And it was so perfectly natural anybody might make the same mistake. It's so like most of the news from Washington that I've been expecting it every day," and Mrs. Spoopendyke overcast the sleeve with the serene conviction that after all you've got to patch a newspaper into a pattern to get at the actual facts some times.

Past Literary Indecencies—Present Pruriency.

[Vernon Lee in Contemporary Review.]

Our modern familiarity with the intellectual work of all times and races has made people perceive that in past days indecency was always part and parcel of literature, and that to try and weed it out is to completely alter the character of at least a good half of the literature of the past. Hence, some of us moderns, shaken as we are in all our conventional ideas, have argued that this so-called indecency is a legitimate portion of all literature and that the sooner it is reintroduced into that of the present the better, if our literature is to be really vital and honest. Now these people do not perceive that the literature of the past contained indecencies because, being infinitely less self-conscious, less responsible than now, the literature of the past contained fragments of every portion of the civilization which produced it. For besides what I might call absolute indecency, in the sense of pruriency, the literature of the past is full of filth pure and simple, like some Eastern town; a sure proof this, that if certain subjects which we taboo were not tabooed then, it was not from any conscious notion of their legitimacy, but from a general habit of making literature, like the street of some Oriental or mediæval town, the scene of every sort of human action, important or trifling, noble or vile; regarding it as the place for which the finest works were painted or carved, and into which all the slops were emptied. Hence, in our wanderings through the literature of the past, our feet are forever stumbling into pools of filth, while our eyes are seeking for the splendid traceries, the gorgeous colors above; our stomachs are turned by stenches even while we are peeping in at some wonderful rose garden or fruit orchard. I think you might almost count on your fingers the books, up to the year 1650, in which you are sure of encountering no beastliness—choice gardens or bowers of the soul, or sacred chapels, kept carefully tidy and pure—viz., Milton, Spenser, the "Vita Nuova," Petrarch, Tasso—things you see mainly sacred or spiritualistic—sort of churches where only devotion of some sort goes on; but if we go out to where there is real life, life complete and thoughtless—Shakspeare, Rabelais, Molière, Ariosto, Cervantes, Aristophanes, Horace—the evil odors meet us again at every step. Well, nowadays, this has all been misunderstood. People have imagined that an inevitable nuisance of the past ought also to be a deliberately chosen nuisance of the present; a line of argument which appears to me to be similar to that of a man who, because the people of Lisbon used, in the days of my grandfather, to practice a very primitive system of sewerage, should recommend that the inhabitants of modern London should habitually empty their slops on to the heads of the passers-by. I am crude? Well, it is by calling nasty things by beautiful names that we are able to endure their existence.

[Philadelphia Press]

Some Correspondents Answered.

We have several letters from respected correspondents who interrogate the Press regarding the deplorable New York controversy. We group them frankly and directly.

"T" says the Press declares that "the people are with the Administration," and wants to know how we know it. We reach this conclusion from contact with men, from examining the newspapers, and from all the various signs of public opinion. In Pennsylvania there are not half a dozen newspapers but condemn the fight made upon the President. It is the same in other States. Even in New York the expression is overwhelmingly on the same side. Practically the manifestations of public opinion are pretty nearly all one way. Republicans generally deplore the fight, but they feel that the party must stand by its Administration.

"H," referring to an answer to a New York York correspondent that Judge Robertson is a Blaine man, wants to know whether this is the reason why the President nominated him for collector. Well, we can hardly answer for the President, but we take it for granted that Judge Robertson was nominated on the ground that the element of the party which was first for Blaine and then for Garfield ought to have some recognition as well as the friends of Mr. Conkling.

"H" further wants to know whether, this being so, the President is not himself the cause of the present distracted condition of the party in the Senate and in New York. We are frank to answer that we think the President made a mistake in nominating Judge Robertson for Collector as he did. We think he did it honestly, without any purpose of making war on Mr. Conkling; but that he did it hastily, without full consultation, as an offset to his first batch of Conkling appointments, and that it was an error of judgment. He ought to have recognized the Robertson element, but in a different way.

But, we repeat, he was, in our opinion, animated by an honest and earnest purpose to recognize and unite all elements of the party, and if he made a mistake of method it did not warrant the bitter fight which was opened against him. Had the difficulty been approached in the right spirit it could have been adjusted. But when the President's act was met with open war, and when the failure of that war was followed by a resignation which made the Senate Democratic, and plunged the party into turmoil and peril, the wrong was on the other side. "H," asks if Mr. Conkling is "to be blamed for fighting for his life." We have too much respect for Mr. Conkling's great ability and standing in the party to believe that his life depended on the New York Custom House. We do not think anybody could have taken his life but himself.

The answers to "T" and "H" will sufficiently answer "A Stalwart" who asks substantially the same questions. He labors under a misapprehension as to Mr. Blaine's part in the matter. It is well understood that Mr. Blaine advised the appointment of Robertson as District attorney, and knew nothing of the purpose to nominate him for Collector until the day and almost the hour it was done. "A Stalwart" thinks it a very grave situation for the party. So do we, and we regret it as much as he can. But we trust he will live with us to see the grand old Republican party emerge triumphantly from this danger as it has from other perils.

A Tale of Bob Ingersoll.

The Story of a Little Hunchback

[Washington Correspondence Chicago Tribune.]

She was a little pale faced girl, hunchbacked, thin, shrinking, and with that look of patience upon her face that belongs to the deformed. She was so thin and fragile that one would hardly credit her with strength to go about. But in all sorts of weather she went bravely upon her small black crutches, hunting Washington over for a place where her thin little hands could find something to do. She came here from Brooklyn with letters from people who had been interested in her forlorn condition. She was 20 years old, an orphan, without a relative or near friend in all the world. In Washington she met with no encouragement. No one had even a kind word for the little hunchbacked woman who had no friends. Day by day she haunted the anterooms of officials, where she was jostled by politicians and place seekers until anyone less patient than she would have given up entirely. Finally, when her resources were nearly all gone, some one told her that there was one man in Washington who was the friend of the friendless, a man with a heart so large and tender that it could not listen to the simplest story of pain and suffering without tears of sympathy. This man, Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll, whose sole happiness consists in making others happy, is besieged night and day with crowds of unhappy people. Although he is regarded by many pious people as an enemy to mankind, yet there is not one of them who each day scatters so much kindness and goodness in the path of his fellow creatures. To him the patient-faced cripple went at once, and found that there there was one man in the city of Washington who does not discriminate between his callers. With him the lame halt and and blind find as much favor, if not more, than the rich and powerful. The little cripple told her story briefly and simply. She was alone in the world. She wanted work. She was able to do much in spite of her deformity. All that she wanted was one chance to show what she could do.
"What have you done already?" was asked.
"I have called to see the President."
"Did you see him?"
"No."
"Why not?"
"Some way I never managed to get in. I would go there and give my letter to the messenger, and he would say, 'the President is busy now; you must wait,' Then I would wait for hours, and then the messenger would say, 'the hour for the President's reception of callers is at an end. Come again to-morrow at ten.'"
"And you went again?"
"Yes; I was always there as the clock struck, but some way I could never get there so early but that others would be ahead of me. I have gone up there for many days, but I never got any further than on the first day."
"Well, I will see what I can do for you."
He then took her address. A day or two later, before he could do anything for her, he was obliged to go away for a day or two. He called upon the little cripple, and asked her bluntly how much money she had. She told him. The amount was only enough to last her two or three days longer. The generous public man said: "Well, I guess I will have to see you through in this matter." So he dove down in his pocket, and gave her enough money to last her until he returned. Then he gave her a letter to the President. With that she obtained an interview with him. It did not appear to be satisfactory, however, for the next day she appeared again at Colonel Ingersoll's.
"Well," said he.
"The President was very kind to me," said the cripple, "but he would not give me a note to any of the department chiefs as I wanted him to do. He said that he had made a rule to not ask personally for any appointment in the departments."
"Well," said the colonel, "you get ready and go up with me to-morrow, and I will talk to the President for you."
The next day Colonel Ingersoll walked in to the President unannounced, as is his privilege. Said he: "Mr. President there is a little hunchback woman outside I want you to see."
"But, my dear Bob," said the President, "there are Senators and members here in this room waiting to see me."
"Let them wait. You have that class here every day. Let them come again if need be. I want you to see my little hunchbacked friend."
"But what can I do for her? I can't write her a letter, as it is against my rules."
"You can make this exception to your rule. You can say: 'I will write no letters except for orphan hunchbacked women with no relatives or friends.' To do such a deed of kindness as this is worth all there is in being President. Anybody can give office to politicians, but it takes the highest of aspirations and noblest of minds to use the great power of President to help the helpless and aid the friendless."
The President smiled as he said: "Well, Bob, for the Lord's sake, for your sake, and for her sake, I will do it."
"Never mind about the Lord's sake. According to your view of the Lord's work, He is responsible for the affliction that now makes this poor girl suffer. So we will leave him out. Also, please leave me out of the case, and do it, as you ought, for her sake.
"Very well: as you say, it shall be done for her sake." Here the President dashed off a hasty order for her appointment, and as he did so, Colonel Ingersoll said, laughingly:
"There, I regard that as one of the most important acts of your Administration."
This is the true history of how this patient faced little woman finally secured a place in one of the Government bureaus.

Just as American Buffaloes Are Going.

[The Saturday Review.]

When the Southern Ocean was first opened to British enterprise by the discoveries of Capt. Cook it teemed with animal life. Fur-seals and hair seals abounded on the coasts of Australia and New Zealand and on the out-lying islands. They were at once set upon and killed, the slaughter being conducted without regard to sex or season. The result was the total extirpation of several species. "One might as soon expect to meet a sea-lion on London bridge as on any one of the islands in Bass's strait," was the reply of a New Zealand naturalist to the inquiry about the seal-life that early voyagers had observed. The same result has happened at the Falkland islands, at Cape Horn, and on the Pacific sea-board of South America. A vessel called the Betsey took 1,000,000 skins from the island of Massafuera at the beginning of the century, an exploit which left no survivors for future adventurers; and the island of Juan Fernandez, where, in Anson's time, there were seals in abundance, has now only a few stragglers to show. The same thing happened at the South Shetlands. In 1821-2 British sealers took 320,000 skins for the two years, killing males and females indiscriminately, and leaving the young to die. The fate of the sperm whale might furnish a useful lesson in the same direction. It was once abundant in the Southern Ocean, but is now all but extinct, from the same causes that we have pointed out above in the case of the seals. The American whalers observed its maternal affection, and found it easier to kill a mother and her cub together than a mother alone. A few years of this policy, added to the use of steamers armed with projectiles of cunning contrivance, and the fishing had to be given up as no longer profitable.

The Lobster Business.

From "The Lobster at Home," an illustrated article by W. H. Bishop, in Scribner for June, we quote the following:

"The factory opens at one end on the wharf, close to the water. Two men bring in the squirming loads on a stretcher and dump the mass into the coppers for boiling. At intervals the covers are hoisted by ropes and pulleys, and dense clouds of steam arise, through which we catch vistas of men, women and children at work. Two men approach the coppers with stretcher and scoop-nets, and they throw rapid scoopfuls, done to a scarlet, backward over their shoulders. The scarlet hue is seen in all quarters—on the steaming stretcher, in the great heaps on the tables, in scattered individuals on the floor, in a large pile of shells and refuse seen through the open door, and in an ox-cart-load of the same refuse, farther off, which is being taken away for use as a fertilizer. The boiled lobster is separated, on long tables, into his constituent parts. The meat of the many-jointed tail is thrust out with a punch. A functionary called a 'cracker' frees that of the claws by a couple of deft cuts with a cleaver, and the connecting arms are passed to be picked out with a fork by the girls. In another department, the meat is placed in the cans. The first girl puts in roughly a suitable selection of the several parts. The next weighs it, and adds or subtracts enough to complete the exact amount desired (one or two pounds). The next forces down the contents with a stamp invented expressly for the purpose. The next puts on a tin cover with blows of a little hammer. Then a tray is rapidly filled with the cans, and they are carried to the solderers, who seal them tightly except for minute openings in the covers, and put them in another tray, which, by means of a pulley-tackle, is then plunged in bath caldrons, in order that the cans may be boiled till the air is expelled from their contents through the minute openings. Then they are sealed up and are boiled again for several hours, when the process of cooking is complete."

DECORATION DAY.

Its Observance in New England and at the National Capital.

AN OCCASION FOR RECONCILIATION IN THE SOUTH.

At Rockland.

ROCKLAND, May 30.—Memorial Day was observed here to-day with the usual ceremonies, under the direction of Edwin Libby Post, G. A. R. At 2 p. m., the Post, escorted by the Tillson Light Infantry and followed by the High School Cadets, the "Tea Tray Cadets" and citizens in carriages proceeded to the Jameson Point cemetery where the graves were decorated with the usual ceremonies, including an appropriate address by Judge O. T. Hall. Graves in other cemeteries had been decorated by detail in the forenoon. In the evening the formal oration of the occasion was delivered by Judge Enoch Knight of Portland, before the above organizations and a large audience at Farwell Hall, Gen. Davis Tillson presiding.

At Bangor.

BANGOR, May 30.—Decoration Day was observed in this city with the usual exercises. The procession, compose of the Bangor Band, Jameson Guards, and Post Beale, G. A. R., proceeded to Mount Hope, where the graves were decorated and the oration delivered by ex-Gov. Davis.

At Boston.

BOSTON, May 30.—Memorial Day is observed in this city more generally than in previous years, nearly all places of business being closed. Various posts of the Grand Army of the Republic proceeded to the different cemeteries of the city and suburbs and decorated the graves of fallen heroes. The weather is clear but very hot. Dispatches from various parts of New England indicate appropriate observances of the day.

At Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Decoration Day is being observed as a general holiday. All executive departments of the government, district offices, banks, and many business houses are closed. At 10 a. m. the procession, consisting of four batteries United States artillery, a company of militia, Union Veteran Corps, and the Grand Army of the Republic marched to Aqueduct Bridge in Georgetown and were there dismissed. Many of those who took part in the parade then visited Arlington and participated in the exercises which commenced at noon. Among those on the grand stand were President Garfield, Secretaries Hunt and Windom, Postmaster General James, Generals Sherman and Meigs.

At New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, May 30.—The soldiers' graves at Chalmette were decorated to-day, the ceremonies being under the auspices of the association of the Grand Army of the Republic. The Hon. J. R. Beckwith delivered the oration. Beautiful floral offerings were contributed by the ladies of the Benevolent Monumental Association of Louisiana. Among the participants in the ceremonies were ex-Confederate associations of the Army of the Tennessee and the Army of Northern Virginia, the Louisiana Field, the Orleans, and the Washington artillery companies, the Continental Guards, and the Mexican Veterans. There was a large attendance.

THE FIRE RECORD.

A Canada Blaze.

CALAIS, ME., May 30.—A house owned by Mrs. Samuel Holmes was burned at Woodstock, N. B. last night. The house and contents were a to tal loss. Insured for $400. The origen of the fire is unknown.

A Maryland Blaze.

BALTIMORE, May 30.—The works of the Waring Fertilizer company at Liberty Grove, Cecil county, were burned Saturday night. Loss $30,000. Six freight cars of the Philadelphia and Baltimore Central railroad were also destroyed.

MARINE NEWS.

Disaster to a Bangor Vessel.

PROVIDENCE, R. I, May 30.- The schooner Julia Elizabeth, from Bangor for Orient, L. I., ran on Watchhill reef this morning. She is probably a total loss. Her cargo of lumber may be saved. The crew were taken off by the life saving crew.

An Anchor Line Steamer Ashore.

LONDON, May 30.—A dispatch from Campbellton, Scotland, says an Anchor line steamer is ashore north of Kintgre light house.

LATER.

The Anchor Line steamer ashore near Kintgre light house is the Macedonia, Capt. Martin, from New York May 19th for Glasgow.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Two Persons Killed and Many Injured.

TRENTON, N. J., May 30.—An accident occurred on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Bear Swamp near this city this afternoon. The train which leaves New York at 3.15, due here at 4.35, was behind time and running full speed ran into an open switch. The train consisted of engine, baggage car, Pullman car and three other cars. One car was completely turned over. Twelve persons are said to have been injured severely and a number of others slightly injured. Augustus Ritter of Philadelphia was killed outright, Mrs. Lucretia Pennington of New York, aged 81, was fatally injured and died soon after. Among the injured are a little girl, niece of Mrs. Pennington, Thomas Murphy of Frankford and conductor Lew Silence. Many of the injured went to Philadelphia. Three cars were smashed to pieces.

LATER.

Among the injured is Lewis Stein of Boston, recovery probable; Mr. Bealstein of Pittsburg, recovery very doubtful. The operator who is also switchman, and whose duty it was to close the switch ran away immediately after the accident and has not yet been found.

NEW YORK.

Liberalizing the Sabbath.

NEW YORK, May 30.—Two New York clubs, which went to Dudley's grove yesterday, had a riot, in which some 200 participated, resulting in about fifty being injured by clubs and stones, including a dozen women. Two young men were wounded by pistol shots.

The Heated Term at Hand.

During the parade of the second division this afternoon in Brooklyn the heat was so excessive that the march was abandoned when nearly at an end within five blocks of Greenwood cemetery.

Alone in Her House with the Small Pox.

KERHONKSON, May 30.—Mrs. Catherine Vandermark, the mother of Mr. Vandermark, who died of small pox in New York city, and was brought here for burial, his remains being exposed in the church at the funeral, was found dead in her house in Mombaccus, near here, a few days ago, she having died from the same disease, which she contracted by washing the clothing of her son. When it was discovered that he had died of small pox she closed up her house, where she lived alone, saying she would not expose any one else. Some days afterwards a neighbor passing by heard a cry in the house, and Mrs. Vandermark came to the window and said that she had the small pox and had been without food for some time. Physicians were summoned and food furnished but nothing could be done for her. There are several other cases of small pox in this village.

The Sleeping Hungarian Dying.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., May 30.—The condition of the sleeping Hungarian is daily growing more critical, and it is believed that a few days more will end his career. He is as helpless as a child, and has ceased to take food. The deformity in his skull has been ascertained to be a genuine fracture. A letter has been received from Charlottesville, Va., giving a history of the ill treatment of a Hungarian bearing the same name as this one, which seems to account for the condition of Gyumber.

CONKLING'S DEFEAT.

But Thirty Men at His Caucus.

SEVENTY MEN IN THE ADMINISTRATION CONFERENCE.

The Democrats Nominate Kernan and Jacobs.

ALBANY, May 30.—Messrs. Conkling, Arthur, Platt and several other leading stalwarts arrived this morning. There are very few members of the Legislature in the city, and there is no excitement.

A suggestion is made in some quarters that the Legislature take a recess until after the November election, and then come together again and vote for Senator. It is said that then members can vote more independently of the influences which govern them, for the reason that they would know the disposition of their constituencies toward them. If they were renominated and re-elected, then they could understand that their respective positions now on the question are now approved. If they are not renominated or re-elected their successors can vote accordingly. This plan is attributed to the stalwarts.

The Administration supporters laugh at this proposition as entirely insufficient. They say they do not want to consider any plans just now. All they want is a vote in joint session, and no caucus, no plans, no machine contrivances whatever. If Conkling and Platt can get the now requisite eighty votes owing to the absence of J. S. Carpenter, they say they will accept their defeat. They do not claim as yet that there will be eighty votes against the resigning Senators. The fact is no one certainly knows how the vote will stand. The Administration section claim every member who has requested that his name be taken from the call for a caucus for an apparent foe to Conkling.

The stalwarts at the start put down some ninety names of members on this their call for a caucus, and these names have crumbled away until the list contained only a minority, or some fifty names. But those who withdrew their names, or at least some of them, never signed the paper ostracising Conkling and Platt.

The Administrationists are somewhat jubilant this evening over fresh accessions to their ranks, among them Senator Mills, of Utica, who last week held aloof and would not state his position. Garshine, Boardman, G. M. Palmer and Gates, members of the Assembly, who have been classified with the stalwarts, are now placed with the Administrationists. Other changes are anticipated.

The following call was sent to each Republican member of the Assembly this afternoon:

ASSEMBLY CHAMBER, May 30.

To-morrow the Assembly is required by law to ballot for two Senators in Congress, and it is urgent and indispensable that members of the Republican party shall act in harmony. No joint conference of the Republicans of both Houses having been called, we hereby call a caucus of the Republican members of the Assembly to agree upon candidates to be supported by the Republicans. The caucus will meet this (Monday) evening in the Assembly chamber immediately on adjournment of the Assembly. We earnestly and respectfully invite the Republican members of the Senate to attend and participate in said caucus.

(Signed) GEORGE A. SHARPE, E. A. CARPENTER, JOHN E. GILLETT, A. L. DRAPER.

The Democratic members of the Legislature in joint session this evening nominated State Senator John C. Jacobs, of Brooklyn, to succeed Conkling, and ex-Senator Francis Kernan was nominated to the position vacated by Platt.

After the adjournment of the House a number of Republican members remained in their seats in accordance with the invitation to meet in caucus. Mr. Draper, of Albany presided, and stated the object of the caucus. He said there was a diversity of opinion for whom votes should be cast. That a Republican who could not meet for such a purpose was unworthy the name.

Mr. Sharpe claimed the party had a right to meet without consulting the convenience of the caucus committee, but owing to existing circumstances the Assembly caucus committee have seen fit to issue this call. He closed by asking that the roll be called.

The chair stated that there was not a majority of the Republican members present, whereupon the caucus adjourned until to-morrow evening. Thirty Republican Assemblymen were present.

The Administration men met for conference this evening. Fifty-seven were present and notes were received from thirteen more saying they will vote for men who will support the Administration. Resolutions were adopted pledging all present to withhold their support from Conkling and Platt.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Two Children Killed by a Fall from a Window.

NEW YORK, May 30.

Frederick Brodde, three years old, and Eva, his sister, eighteen months old, fell from a window in the fourth story of the tenement house No. 517 Tenth avenue into the area of the adjoining building, yesterday, and were killed. While their parents and elder brother were absent from the room the children pulled chairs near the window, climbed on them and looked into the street below. Something there attracted the attention of the little girl, and in leaning forward to get a better view she lost her balance and fell out. The boy caught her dress as she rolled over the sill, but the weight and force of the falling child took him off his feet after her. In their descent both children struck an awning extending from the first story of the house, rebounded and dropped in the next basement. The accident was witnessed by a number of people, who looked on, terror stricken, unable to render assistance. Some of the women present rushed into the basement and lifted the children up. The boy was found to be dead; the little girl lived but a few minutes.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

A Girl Falls Over a Precipice of Eighty Feet.

NEW YORK, May 30.—On Saturday afternoon a number of young ladies from Orange visited Eagle Rock, a romantic and much frequented resort a short distance up the mountain, and while enjoying themselves one of them, Miss Ella Dean, aged 17, fell over a precipice a distance of eighty feet. Her companions were horrified and two of them fainted, believing that she was killed. Some of the others made their way down to where they expected to find their young companion's mangled and lifeless body, but when they reached her Miss Dean quietly asked why they had not waited for her at the top as she intended to come right up. She was assisted home and on examination it was found that beyond a scalp wound and several bruises she had sustained no serious injuries. Her escape from instant death is looked upon as miraculous.

In Jail for Bigamy.

ATLANTA, May 30.—John W. Follansby of Fond du Lac., is in jail here, charged with bigamy. Follansby came to Atlanta in 1875, and obtained employment as a carpenter. Some time ago he made the acquaintance of Miss Hunter, daughter of a sheriff of an adjoining county, who was a most accomplished young woman, and quite a society belle. Two weeks ago Felton married Miss Hunter against the will and urgent protest of her father, and the publication of the fact in the local press. Follansby has a wife and five children in Fon du Lac. The young wife on learning the cause of Follansby's arrest denounced the scoundrel in the strongest terms, but afterward relented and begged piteously for his release.

Surveying Party Rescued.

DENVER, May 30.—A despatch from Colorado Springs says: Mr. Mythias, a civil engineer of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Company, with a party of men, about the 25th of April was impounded in the Gunnison country, at the head of the Roaring Forks, by snow and high water and prevented from going south or north by Indians. A relief party was sent from Leadville on the 19th inst. and returned yesterday. They report rescuing Mythias and his party on Monday last. They found them very weak, having had nothing to eat but fresh meat for thirty-one days.

Bank Failure.

CHATTANOOGA, May 30.—The discount and deposit bank of Chattanooga, to-day has posted writs on its closed doors announcing an assignment for the benefit of its creditors, and expressing confidence that all will be paid in full The liabilities are stated to be $104,000. Twenty-five per cent of this will be liquidated to-morrow.

Another Wife Murder.

INDIANAPOLIS May 30.—John Eurich, an expolicoman whose wife had applied for a divorce, shot her and her father this morning, then himself. Eurich died, Mrs. Eurich's condition is critical. Her father is slightly wounded.

THE FISHERY QUESTION.

First Fruits of Secretary Blaine's Foreign Policy.

THE BRITISH AGREE TO PAY FOR THE FORTUNE BAY OUTRAGE.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Secretary Blaine and Sir Edward Thornton concluded on Saturday the prolonged negotiatoins in regard to outrages upon American fishermen at Fortune Bay, N. F. in January, 1878, and later dates at Aspee Bay, C. B. The American claims for losses aggregated $103,000. The agreement between Secretary Blaine and Sir Edward Thornton is that the British government shall pay £15,000 sterling in gold coin. The money will probably be paid sometime this week and will be promptly distributed among its rightful owners. Nearly the whole amount goes to Gloucester, Mass.

Death of a Politician.

Gloomy Outlook in Russia.

VIENNA, May 30.—Rumors are circulating that a fresh outrage has been perpetrated in St. Petersburg, and that the taking of the Czar's life has been attempted by Nihilists. No particulars in confirmation have been received.

The state of affairs in Russia is looked on by the general public in Vienna with the greatest distrust. Reports are every day coming in from western frontiers describing cruelties inflicted on the Jews upon the Russian side of the border. This Jewish persecution is, however, not the worst, as there is evidence that the leaders of the agitation are now directing it against the owners of landed property and the wealthy class generally.

Among diplomatists great reserve is maintained in regard to the situation in Russia. They express disappointment in regard to Ignatieff and refuse to give an opinion as to other ministerial appointments. For some time to come the course which events may take in the Russian capital cannot fail to inspire serious anxiety both in and out of Russia.

Chancellor of the Exchequer.

LONDON, May 30.—It is believed that Hugh C. Childers of the Secretary of War, has will become chancellor of exchequer.

An Irish Meeting Postponed.

A proposed meeting in Hyde Park yesterday to protest against arrests in Ireland was postponed, Parnell having recommended it to be deferred until the Commons had voted on McCarthy's motion to censure the governor.

Taunted with Cowardice.

The Times' Dublin dispatch says Mr. John O'Connor Power, replying to a letter from Mr. Egan to Mr. Brennan wherein Mr. Egan abuses Messrs. Power and McCoan for voting the second reading of the Land bill, taunts Mr. Egan with skulking in Paris, and warns his countrymen that if they allow themselves to be be goaded into unarmed insurrection by the screaming of hired demagogues who have already shown the white feather, they will be abandoned and betrayed in the hour of trial. Mr. McCoan also taunts Mr. Egan with hiding in Paris, and hints that Mr. Egan's letter was inspired by others.

DUBLIN, May 30.—A former tenant of Farmer Dempsey's holding has been arrested with his nephew in connection with the shooting of Dempsey in County Galway yesterday.

That Scientific Frontier.

CALCUTTA, May 30.—The government has received peremptory orders directing evacuation of the Pishin valley as soon as practicable. Quetta is to be the extreme frontier position. This order was issued in spite of the protests of the Indian government and of all competent military authorities here.

The Troublesome Boers.

DURRAN, May 30.—The feeling among the loyalists throughout the Transvaal is one of anxiety. Numerous reports of Boer outrages since the peace was established are reported. The Boers attacked a body of natives and murdered ten of the number because they were loyal to the Queen and working for the English. The Swazies, Zulus and Transvaal natives express determination to fight the Boers if they are left in complete possession of the country.

The Women Take a Hand.

DUBLIN, May 30.—A bailiff went to serve writs on the property of Mr. Hutchins, near Mallow, county Cork, Saturday. Some women seized him, destroyed the writs, stripped him naked and threw him into the river. They caught him as he came out and thrashed him with furze. The unfortunate man, more dead than alive, was then tarred and feathered and hunted through the country. A large party of police went out from Mallow to rescue him, but after scouring the country were unable to find him.

The New Pallas Evictions to be Carried Out.

Elaborate preparations are being made to renew the attempt to carry out the New Pallas evictions this week, but on what day is not known, as the authorities keep the dates of their movements strictly secret.

SYMONDS, J., PRESIDING.

Edwin Stone, executor, vs. Charles W. Kenney. This was an action brought by Edwin Stone, Esq., executor of the last will of Aaron McKenney, late of Buxton, deceased, to recover of Charles W. McKenney the amount due on a note of $5505.71, being one of four notes of same date, and amount given by Charles W. McKenney to the father in October, 1879. The defendant claims that on the 26th of March, 1880, the plaintiff's testate, Aaron McKenney, gave him a receipt in full, cutting said notes, and also gave him at the same time a deed of certain timber lands in Denmark and Baldwin, in this state, and in Albany and Chatham, in Carroll county, in New Hampshire. The plaintiff claimed that the receipts and deed were forgeries and brought action on one of the notes in this county, and also with other heirs brought a bill in equity in Cumberland county to vacate the said deed.

All questions between the executor and other heirs on the one hand, and Charles W. McKenney on the other, were involved in this trial.

Trial commenced Wednesday and continued until Friday afternoon, when the plaintiff for himself and the other heirs offered the defendant to compromise all matters in dispute, if the defendant would release his one-quarter interest in the homestead farm, which was subject to a life estate, and pay the plaintiff $1000, which offer the defendant accepted. Defendant's notes were given up and all claim to lands given him by his father abandoned, and receipts in full between the parties were passed.

Nathan Webb—Caleb R. Ayer—Rufus Tapley for plaintiff,

Ira T. Drew—Joseph A. Locke for defendant.

Brief Jottings.

The Boston Courier notices the fact that Mr. George W. Seavey, of that city—whom we always claim as a Waterville boy—has recently received two commissions for flower pieces from a distinguished London firm. The same paper compliments in high terms "a superb piece in three compartments," just completed by Miss Coburn, a neice of ex-Gov. Coburn, and a pupil of Mr. Seavey,—the subject being roses, white, yellow and pink.—Waterville Mail.

We congratulate the thousands of readers of the most excellent paper, "The Maine Farmer," that the publishers have secured Howard Owen, Esq., as a successor to Mr. Manley on the editorial staff. Mr. Owen is one of the most brilliant and industrious journalists in Maine and needs no encomiums from us. We have no fears but that he will keep the "Farmer" up to the high place, as a family paper, which it now holds. While attending to work on the "Farmer," Mr. Owen will not neglect his duties at the Court House. He will have a clerk there all the time, and at certain hours each day will be there personally to attend to official business, answer correspondents, etc.—Augusta Journal.

Robbery in Deering.

Yesterday two men got into a drunken affray at Jones's brick-yard in East Deering. One of the men was arrested and brought to our police station. The other got into a boarding house at East Deering and were paid by men who lived in the yard, broke open some trunks and stole a sum of money. The officers are looking for him.

MEMORIAL DAY.

ITS OBSERVANCE IN PORTLAND AND VICINITY.

Abstracts of Addresses and Orations.

Yesterday opened muggy and sticky for Decoration Day, but later the sky cleared and the air was better. In the afternoon a tremendous thunder shower somewhat interfered with the programme, but it had the good effect of clearing the atmosphere. The city presented the usual Sunday appearance in the afternoon, after the procession had left town for Evergreen. In the morning, and especially during passage of the soldiers, the route was crowded with citizens. Flags were displayed at half mast everywhere.

The morning was devoted to the decoration of graves in the cemeteries other than Evergreen. The barge Forest City Belle conveyed a delegation of 25 misses dressed in white, under the charge of Surgeon John Williamson to Eastern Cemetery. Rev. Mr. F. E. Clark of Williston officiated as Chaplain. The Lincoln Tree and bust of Lincoln were decorated first. Then Eastern Cemetery was visited and 38 graves decorated including those of Surgeon Huskins' and Commodore Preble. Mr. Clark spoke of his gratification at seeing the young ladies and Misses engaged in the work of decorating the soldier's graves. They do not recall as a matter of personal memory the history, of those terrible four years of war; they are too young to have heard the roll of the drums of those who went out, or to have seen the battle scarred veterans return, but nevertheless they share in the benefits which were gained. The life of every young man and woman, of every boy and girl of the present day is affected by the bravery of the soldiers whose death we to-day celebrate.

It is fitting then that they who have been thus benefited should strew the flowers of kindly remembrance to-day. The sight of these young people thus engaged too indicates, that the observance of this memorial day will not soon die out. All our national holidays are important, and should be perpetuated by the generations to come, but none is more important than this. Even if you forget to light the tar bucket on the 22nd day of February, or to fire the cannon on the 4th of July, do not forget to strew the flowers on the 30th of May.

As the Illinois farmer travelled on foot for hundreds of miles to write on the tombstone of the man who had taken his place when drafted into the army "He died for me"; so may every grateful patriot throughout all the years to come when memorial day returns say, as with flowers and banners he decorates any soldier's grave; "he died for me." May God grant that the future history of our land may prove that they did not die in vain.

The delegation to Calvary cemetery consisted of a squad of twenty-two comrades under command of Officer of the Guard, Daniel E. McCann. At half past eight Chandler's full band headed by Drum Major Bean, the Montgomery guards and the Cathedral Cadets marched from their armories to Grand Army hall and escorted the squad to the Boston and Maine depot. At this Cemetery eighty graves were decorated. The only special contribution was a lovely ivy cross for the grave of Cornelius O'Neil. The religious exercises were under the charge of Rev. Father O'Dowd.

A company of twenty-five boys under comrade F. W. True decorated 64 graves at Western Cemetery. Rev. Mr. Southworth offered prayer. Among the special decorations were a basket of flowers for the grave of William B. Small; a floral cross for that of James Riggs; potted plants for the graves of William L. Hurd and George Hurd; a bouquet for the grave of Samuel Huff; and a wreath for that of William Leggitt.

Fourteen comrades took the Resolute for Forest City Cemetery, under command of comrade David C. King. Here fifty-four graves were decorated. There were no special offerings. The school children of district No. 12 assisted in the decoration exercises. After the singing of "America" by the children, with organ accompaniment, Rev. Mr. Pendexter offered prayer. Two little girls then gave short recitations and two hymns were sung. Rev. Mr. Pendexter made a few appropriate remarks in place of John C. Cobb, Esq., who was unable to deliver the oration as advertised.

Mr. James M. Safford went to Peaks Island and decorated the monument there. There were no religious exercises.

AFTERNOON.

In the afternoon the line was formed precisely at 1.30 o'clock and the procession marched over the published route in the following order:

Platoon of Police—14 men.
Chief Marshal—G. H. Poor.
Aids—C. A. Lang and G. H. Abbott.
Brown Light Artillery—31 men—1st Lieut. S. L. Larrabee.
Drum Major Bean.
Chandler's Band—24 pieces.
Col. John Marshall Brown and Staff.
Portland Mechanic Blues, Capt. C. W. Davis—50 men.
Montgomery Guards, Capt. T. J. Hartnett—50 men.
Portland Light Infantry, Capt. Weston—50 men.
Portland Cadets, Capt. Mosely—33 men.
Cathedral Cadets—26 men.
Portland High School Cadets, Capt. Richardson—30 men.
Commander J. G. Fitzgerald and Staff.
National and Department Officers.
Past Post Commander.
Bosworth Post, 1st Company, S. V. C. S. B. Day—40 men.
Portland Army and Navy Union—10 men.
Bosworth Post, 2d Company, J. V. C. A. Crockett—43 men.
Barouche containing Rev. Zenas Thompson, Col. T. A. Roberts, Comrades C. W. Roberts and James Lowe.

The Mexican War Veterans were represented in the procession by Frank Lanergan.

The military display was one of the finest ever seen in the city. The band played exquisitely, and the troops marched with great precision. The Brown Artillery appeared for the first time mounted and proved a decided feature. Their new helmets are a great addition to their uniform, and the only drawback to their marching was a balky horse attached to one of the caissons.

The train was taken for Evergreen at 2.30, and at that spot some 200 graves were decorated. Among the special decorations were those for

Mrs. A. M. Walker,	Dr. Hersom,
Lieut. J. S. Roberts,	Comrade C. H. Merrill,

George E. Strayton,	N. T. Furbush.

The soldiers' monument was also finely decorated.

Before the Post had finished decorating the graves the rain caused a stampede of the great multitude present and the services assigned for the occasion were dispensed with.

EVENING.

City Hall was crowded in the evening. A band concert was given by Chandler's Band before the regular exercises, and the following programme was executed with fine effect:

Selections from Olivette.....Audran
Selections from Semiramide.....Rossini
Hollandsche Cavalry.....Ter Linden

At the conclusion of the concert the Post entered the hall escorting the orator, chaplain and distinguished guests. The former took reserved seats on the floor of the house, and the latter seats on the platform. Prayer was then offered by Rev. Dr. Seward, of Plymouth church, after which A. A. Strout, Esq., delivered the oration, of which the following is an abstract:

MR. STROUT'S ORATION.

The orator commenced by referring to the fact that sixteen years had elapsed since the close of the war, with the Nation preserved and slavery destroyed. At that time while all were rejoicing, there was no cause for sadness because those who had often stemmed the tide of disastrous fight lay sleeping in honored graves. Since that hour the prattling boy has grown to manhood, and the leaders of a country's affairs have given place to a younger generation. The gratitude of the nation remains unchanged. Others, said the speaker, will in the future perform the sacred duties you have taken upon yourselves to-day, and as time bears us and posterity further from the great events of the civil war, we may hope to see reared in yonder square a fitting monument inscribed with the names of those who, by their valor and homage, have deserved well of their fellow men.

The orator then proceeded to enumerate the circumstances which led to the great rebellion. These began at the adoption of the Constitution. The doctrine of State rights, the institution of slavery, the fact that the South saw the rapid development of wealth and population in the North would soon take from the former section its commanding influence in the councils of the nation, made the war inevitable. It came. The people responded to calls for troops until 2,600,000 men had been summoned to defend the flag. Of these 50,000 fell on the field of battle, 200,000 of wounds and disease. To-night they constitute that vast army of heroic spirits in whose presence we stand and whose memories we cherish with reverent and tender devotion. The historian may record the struggle but there is an unwritten history his art may never trace; the struggle between love and duty that called the soldier to the conflict; the weary watching for those who never would return; the sufferings in camp and hospital; the joy at the return of men whose term of service had expired; this can never be written by human hand nor told by human tongue. And yet the courage and patriotism of these noble men, worthy descendants of the heroes of Valley Forge, never faltered and they could not learn how to yield, and when we consider their wonderful achievements on land and sea, when we remember how a navy was created, an army mustered, armed and fed, an empty treasury replenished, and the envy and rapacity of foreign nations held in check, we cannot withhold our gratitude and admiration not only for the soldiers who fought upon the field but for the statesmen who guided the affairs of the nation.

This vast expenditure of life and treasure was not in vain. We, who survive to-day, witness the glorious results of the peace sealed at Appomattox. It prevented our disruption into petty states; it preserved, by maintaining the country's unity, the advantage over foreign governments of a nation entrenched between two great oceans, with no hostile power on the continent strong enough to compete with it in the arts of war. The grandeur and influence of a people, so circumstanced, able to stand unarmed before the nations of the earth and command their deference and respect, must be apparent at a glance.

What was the influence of the war upon the internal economy and growth of the nation and the future of its institutions? It taught foreign nations a useful lesson, opened the door of immigration and rendered possible the elevation of both the white and black races in the south, removed the causes of bitterness and ill feeling between the different sections of the country and taught the cost of armed rebellion as a redress of political grievances, made the people better acquainted with each other, and removed groundless jealousies and many causes of prejudice which often ripened into hatred. It is true the record of the war is disfigured by the horrors of Belle Isle, Andersonville and Libby Prison, but it is also true that, in many instances, the evils of war were mitigated by acts of kindness and chivalrous courtesy never to be forgotten. We have demonstrated this government is not only a union of states but a sovereign nation whose power is the expressed will of an intelligent and patriotic people.

How momentous then are the duties devolving upon this and succeeding generations for the preservation of these institutions transmitted to our keeping. The orator then graphically spoke of the growth in wealth and population since three centuries ago the American colonies took possession of this country; and yet vast uninhabited tracts remain so that it is within the range of possibility the children of those now living may see our people number 200,000,000 with the capacity of the country, for their support, not then exhausted. He also pointed out the remarkable increase of our wealth and development of resources; our manufactures and inventions—with which we can compete with the cheaper labor of other countries; the rapid growth of towns and cities, that in other lands have taken centuries to build up. As the country grows, the national resources will increase, the national burdens grow lighter. Who then can portray the possibilities open to our national prosperity, or measure its influence on the destinies of other nations? One European power has followed our example and eventually all others may. In the face of the national progress and greatness how poor and unsubstantial seem personal ambitions and partisan triumphs. Men die and are forgotten—parties rise to power and fall to decay. It remains for us to practice those virtues and promote those institutions which will best preserve the nation to future ages; these are the educators of all classes, the presence and practice of some form of religious faith, the recognition and protection of the equality of every citizen before the law, the securing a full and fair expression of the will of the people, every act that tends to remove prejudice and restore harmony, every influence leading to a deeper love for the flag. Could the dead comrades speak they would implore us to subordinate the strife of party, the demands of personal ambition, to the higher and holier cause of national unity for which they sacrificed life itself. They would teach us that purity in the administration of public affairs is necessary to the promotion of public interests and that the general corruption and venality in a republic are the sure precursors to its destruction. They have left us their deathless example for our admiring emulation. They have left us the flag, hallowed by the memory of their heroic deeds, the symbol of an undivided nation. May we never prove recreant to the great trust. Let us turn our faces to the future with the firm resolve no action of ours shall tarnish the glorious record of the past. Let us teach our children how sacred and holy is the inheritance which they are to maintain. Then shall the republic endure with no danger to threaten its peace or cloud its lustre. And, as the genuis of history shall record the peaceful triumphs of this nation, preserved by the valor of the men whose deeds we commemorate to-night, and succeeding generations shall witness the mighty republic, powerful in its union and glorious in its purposes of justice and humanity, holding its honored way amongst the nations of the earth, the words of the dying hero of Shiloh shall be echoed by grateful voices, and the verdict of all coming time shall be, They Did not Die in Vain.

At the close of the oration Dr. Seward pronounced the benediction and the audience dispersed.

Thus ended a most successful celebration of Memorial Day 1881.

At Saccarappa.

The Memorial Day exercises attracted many people to the Congregational church yesterday morning, a larger number than usual participating in the observances. The exercises began with a well rendered selection by the Westbrook Cornet Band. Then Lieut J. M. Webb read the names of the deceased soldiers, whose graves were to be decorated. Prayer was offered by the Rev. E. S. Tead and an able and excellent address delivered by the Rev. E. E. Bacon. The announcement of the committee for 1882 was as follows: J. M. Webb, G. A. Whidden, D. P. Horr. This closed the indoor exercises,

A procession was formed under command of Marshal G. F. Mariner, to march to the cemetery in the following order: Westbrook Cornet Band, soldiers and sailors commanded by F. Adams, speakers and disabled soldiers and sailors in carriages, and citizens and schools commanded by A. Barbour. At the cemetery the graves were decorated, prayer was offered by the Rev. E. E. Bacon, the band played a dirge and remarks were made by the Rev. E. S. Tead.

The successful manner in which the observance were carried out showed the deep interest manifested. In the afternoon many of the business places were closed, although none of the manufactories suspended operations during the day.

Ladies' Day at the Cumberland Club.

Yesterday was Ladies' Day at the Cumberland Club. The spacious mansion was beautifully decorated with tropical plants and pots of rare flowers by Dirwanger, while the various rooms and halls were adorned with a fine collection of pictures arranged by the art committee. Among those that attracted a great deal of attention were "Whale Back Light" by H. B. Brown, a sunset by Veron, a flower piece by Hewes—representing roses in an antique vase and exhibiting magnificent effects in color—J. B. Hudson's best oil painting "Those Loving Pines," C. F. Kimball's "Countryside at Bridgton," a landscape of Tilton's, Stanwood's "London and Blackfriars Bridge," and J. T. Perle's "Girl Eating Cherries." It will be noticed that most of those are the work of Portland artists and the exhibition was intended to be a representative one. Mr. Brown and Mr. Hewes also had other excellent pictures on the walls, the former quite a number.

The reception lasted from 12 o'clock till 3 p. m. and was presided over by President Fassett and the members of the executive and house committees. There was a very large attendance of ladies and many of the toilettes displayed were of more than usual elegance. The quadrille band furnished excellent music for the dance, and a delicious collation of salads, strawberries and Harlequin ices, was served in the dining-room. The first reception was a decided success.

Obituary

Mrs. Ellen Hobbs Rollins, wife of Hon. E. A. Rollins of Philadelphia, died in that city on Sunday. The funeral will take place to-day at Great Falls, N. H., the early home of the family. Mrs. Rollins was greatly admired and beloved by her many friends in this vicinity, and in Washington, where she spent many years of her life. She was a woman of wonderful earnestness and strength of purpose and character, and of the finest and highest perceptions, both in literature and in her daily associations and conversation. Her pictures of rural New Hampshire life in "New England Bygones" will now be of especial value and beauty to her friends.

Heavy Thunder Storm.

A tremendous thunder storm burst over the city about 4 p. m. yesterday. The rain poured in torrents such as are rarely seen outside of the tropics. About an inch or more of rain must have fallen. Branches were torn from trees, and the streets were turned into rivers. At one time the rain was so dense it was almost impossible to distinguish objects across the street.

Woman Suffrage.

The first meeting of the National Association of Womans Suffragists will be held at City Hall to-morrow evening at 7.45 o'clock. Mrs. Susan B. Anthony, Mrs. Cady Stanton, Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake, and others will be present probably to address the public.

OLD ORCHARD BEACH.

The Improvements Made and in Progress this Season.

If any of our readers are troubled with the blues they should take a trip to Old Orchard if they have not been there for a twelve month they will notice a great change. Old Orchard is now the busiest place in this State. Every carpenter, mason and laborer is employed and more wanted. A new depot is to be built on the Methodist Camp Ground for the Boston & Maine road within the next 30 days.

The Free Baptists are preparing their grounds for a pavilion and for cottages. The tendency of the settlement is westward and very soon the Old Orchard station will be where the Beach Road branches off from the Boston & Maine. The cottages in this vicinity have multiplied very fast. Col. Green of Savannah, Georgia, has just completed a set of buildings costing him $10,000. Dr. Cullis of Boston has a nice cottages near by. S. G. Dorman of Boston has a house intended for a permanent home ected at a cost of $5000. J. Miller of Lewiston is just completing a cottage near Col. Green's. Rev. Mr. Smyth of Portland has made an addition to his cottage in the same vicinity and is now occupying it. A little further east on the Beach, Thomas Goodall of Sanford has a nice residence which he is to improve by raising all his buildings one story higher.

On the higher grounds in the vicinity of Union avenue many changes have been made and several cottages are being finished. J. S. Crockett has bought the three story house lately built by Mr. Mitchell. Baxter Marr of Lewiston has purchased the Plaisted Mansion for a permanent home, and is now engaged in building a store. George Cushman of this city has the lumber on the ground for a house on Ocean avenue. Rev. Mr. Clark and Chas. Pennell have beautified their cottages and will erect stables. Miss Record has leased her boarding house to Mrs. H. A. Small of Fairfield. M. G. Palmer has added to his lot by purchase and is enlarging his cottage and will add a stable. Mayor Moses of Biddeford is improving and embellishing his beautiful establishment. Mayor Day of Lewiston has bought an additional lot adjoining his house. Mrs. Baxter of Saco is building a good sized two-story cottage for a permanent home. R. C. Thomes of Buckfield has bought the cottage on Highland avenue built by John E. Palmer who will build again nearer the water. E. S. Carney has leased the cottage built by Mamy Smith. Nahum Ordway is finishing a cottage near M. G. Palmer's for a permanent residence, and a great many other changes are transpiring.

One of the great attractions to this place is the mineral spring from which the Camp Ground is supplied. Already several remarkable cures stand to its credit, and as it becomes better known it will be appreciated and patronized. All in all this is the rising place on this coast and needs only to be known to be appreciated.

The side wheel steamer Samuel E. Spring now at the Portland Company's wharf receiving her machinery, will be completed and ready to run on her route, the terminus of the Orchard Beach Railroad (from the pier to Biddeford Pool) about the 24th of June. This boat will make eight to ten trips a day, making close connections with all trains from Portland and Boston.

This opens one of the pleasantest routes on the coast, passengers taking the trains on the Boston & Maine Railroad to Old Orchard, thence via the Orchard Beach Railroad to the Saco river and then by steamer for a sail down the Saco river. The Yates and Highland Houses will be opened about the 24th of June at the Pool—two first class summer hotels. For picnics, organizations and large parties this route offers extra inducements.

Last Monday work was commenced on the Old Orchard Junction Railroad. Mr. J. M. Robbins, the contractors, has one hundred men at work and next Wednesday fifty more will be put at work. The road ready for trains will be completed the first day of July.

An engine of the Fornly pattern, 17 tons, has been purchased. Elegant open cars will be used. Trains will connect with all trains of the Eastern Railroad. The building of this road will give passengers along the line of the Eastern Railroad in direct connection with Old Orchard. It is all independent road, the owners (there being only five) being connected with neither the Boston & Maine or Eastern. Trains will be run every 40 minutes, The Portland Rolling Mills have the contract for furnishing the iron spikes and fish plates.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

THE GUV'NOR.

Thursday night Portland Theatre will be filled by a most appreciative audience eager to witness the Museum's great success, "The Guv'nor." All through the New England circuit this play has met with crowded houses and the fact that Warren, Barron, Wilson, Haworth, Hudson, Burrows, Nolan, Mrs. Vincent, Sadie Martinot and other favorites will appear in the cast is a guarantee of its attraction. There was a large sale of seats yesterday.

NOTES.

Get your seats at Stockbridge's for Aunt Polly Bassett's "Singin Skewl," to be in session at City Hall next Friday evening. There will be a large chorus in costume.

It is stated that Jennie Winston and A. H. Bell will not be members next season of Mahn's opera company.

Manager Marcus Mayer reports the Rennes "Billee Taylor" company as doing a fine business in New England cities and towns.

Col. Mapleson has introduced to his London patrons a new dramatic soprano, Mlle. Adalgisa Gabbi, who has had moderate success. The chief artists still delay their appearance.

Bowdoins vs. Harvards.

Everything appeared well for a good game of base ball, and at 3 p. m. yesterday a large crowd of spectators, some 1200 in numbers were gathered at Presumpscot park where the game was called. The Bowdoins were first at the bat. After four innings had been played in which the Harvards had secured four runs, while the Bowdoins had failed to obtain any a heavy shower came up which ended the game much to the disappointment of all. The score of the game, promised by the Bowdoin scorer, has not put in an appearance. Perhaps he felt too bad to give it.

Gorham.

The services at the M. E. church, Sunday, were of a deeply interesting character. In the morning the pastor, Rev. J. A. Corey, preached an excellent discourse upon self-denial which was well received by the audience and in the afternoon the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered and two persons received to the church. In the evening a very profitable social service was held. The conference year with this parish opens well.

Runaway.

A horse took fright at the lightning at Woodfords' yesterday afternoon and ran away with the buggy to which he was attached. He collided with another team and broke the shafts of the buggy. Two ladies were the occupants of the carriage but were not hurt.

Delay of the Pullman.

The Boston Pullman was delayed about two hours last night by the breaking down of an engine on the line between Newburyport and Portsmouth. No other damage was done.

FRYE'S SUCCESSOR.

George D. Bisbee Withdraws from the Canvass.

The Republican convention to nominate a candidate for Congress from the Second Maine district, will meet at Auburn, June 23. Mr. George D. Bisbee, of Buckfield, gives his reasons for withdrawing from the canvass in the following letter, published in the Oxford Democrat:

I learn that the Republican District Committee have issued a call for a convention to be held at an early day to nominate a successor to the Hon. Wm. P. Frye, and thinking that a spirited canvass by the friends of the various gentlemen in the Second District who have Congressional aspirations will soon be made, I take this occasion and method of saying to my friends in Oxford and other portions of the district, who have kindly offered to assist me in that direction, that under existing circumstances I do not desire to be a candidate, or have any support in the convention.

I frankly admit that if a nomination at this time carried with it the usual force and precedent I should not only be willing to accept it but should solicit the aid of my friends, and participate in the canvass; but I fully recognize the force of the argument that the approaching election is simply to fill a vacancy existing under the old apportionment; that under the new apportionment which will govern the election in 1882 Maine will lose one Congressman and the Second District will be materially changed by the addition of one or more large counties, with a strong probability of losing portions of its present territory; that the nominee of this convention would have no claim either through precedent or equity for a renomination in 1882 from a district not yet constituted and which has no voice in the present canvass.

I also take into consideration the fact that Oxford county will doubtless have one or more candidates before the convention, and having no desire to complicate the canvass in Oxford, I take this public action and trust that while it may be an active contest, it may be conducted with the best of feeling among all, and that when a nomination shall have been made it will so commend itself to the Republicans in this district, that they will give to the successful candidate such cordial and active support as shall ensure his election by one of our old fashioned majorities.

STATE NEWS.

KENNEBEC COUNTY.

Mr. Cyril Howard of Sidney, met with a severe and perhaps fatal accident, Saturday afternoon. He was driving home from Augusta on the "river road." Going down Fisher Hill, the breeching broke, and the horse took fright and ran away. Mr. Howard was thrown out upon a pile of stones. He was taken up insensible and carried home. It is feared that serious consequences may result from the accident.

PENOBSCOT COUNTY.

The furnace-house of the Katahdin Iron Works was burned Saturday night. Loss $1000; insurance, $500.

Bangor is to have a new opera house. The Whig says the edifice will probably be built with its front line flush to the sidewalk; the face of the building will be of pressed brick, laid in red cement, with freestone trimmings and terra cotta points; large mullioned windows with arched tops and stained glass tiles will ornament the front and give light to the gallery stairs. The main entrance will be broad, and situated in the center. The auditorium, as now planned, will be capable of seating nearly twelve hundred people. In the rear of the parquet, and somewhat raised, will be the dress circle; above this a balcony and gallery. The proscenium will be square, richly ornamented.

SOMERSET COUNTY.

The Riverside Oracle gives the losses and insurance at the Skowhegan fire as follows: Wm. G. Heselton, Turner House and its connections, loss $30,000, insured for $15,000; Chas. Fairbrother, loss $2,000, insurance $1,000; S. Coburn, loss $2,000, insurance none; Chandler Tuttle, loss $2,000, insurance $1,500; Joseph Carnaway, loss $300, insurance none. There are also a large number of smaller losses, not here estimated. The total loss will probably exceed $50,000.

YORK COUNTY.

Theodore C. Blake, a young man of much promise, son of Rev. Joseph Blake, and grandson of the late Theodore Clark, was brought to Wells for interment on Friday, having been killed in Dakota by lightning a few days previously. He was 23 years old and unmarried.

INTERNATIONAL
Pavement Co.
FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS,
WITH A BONUS OF STOCK.

The pavement made by this Company has met with the highest favor, both in this country and in Europe, and it is considered to approach perfection more nearly than any other.

The Works of the Company are at Providence, R. I., and at Hastings, N. Y., and the needs of its business will soon require additional ones at Chicago and other large cities.

Negotiations are now pending with capitalists in London and Paris for the right to manufacture and use this pavement in those cities.

Few enterprises now on the market promise as profitable business at this one.

The Company require additional means to extend their facilities for manufacturing, and offer for sale the second $100,000 of their 6 per cent. bonds (convertible into stock) at par and interest. These bonds carry a bonus of stock, which is fixed for the present at FIFTY PER CENT.

POETRY.

My Age and Creed.

[The following lines from the pen of Mr. J. Hacker, who edited "The Pleasure Boat" in this city years ago, will interest many Portland readers.]

The name and date of this old pate
I'm willing all should read,
Though few will practice what I write,
When I announce my creed.

The sixteenth day of bonny May,
In eighteen hundred one,
The doctor brought me in his bag,
Or so the story run.

'Twas on the Androscoggin shore,
In good old Brunswick town,
District of Maine, United States.
The doctor put me down.

They held no conference with me,
Nor asked if I'd be born,
But dropped me into life's mad whirl
On that bright May-day morn.

But time would fail to tell my tale
Of all these rolling years;
Of joy and pain, of loss and gain,
Of mingled smiles and tears.

But I must yet "get up and get,"
But whither I shall go,
No mortal man of any clan,
While in this world can know.

Some tell us all, at Gabriel's call,
Will enter perfect bliss;
Others declare we have no share
In any world but this.

Some say a few, with hearts made new,
With God in love will dwell,
While all the rest, though some lived best,
Will squirm in endless hell.

O, horrid thought, my churchman taught
That God, the fount of love,
Could create souls in endless shoals
All fit for bliss above,

And let a snake his wise plans break,
And plunge us all in woe,
Then slay his son to save but one
In every score or two!

Such minds may soar, fog-banks explore
In or above the skies;
Committing crime, by losing time
For here their duty lies.

But as for me my creed must be:
"Perform your duty here,
And then when death demands your breath;
You'll have no cause to fear."

So while I stay I'll work each day,
With hands, and tongue, and pen,
And strength I'll give, while yet I live,
To aid my fellow men.

WOLFE'S Schiedam Aromatic SCHNAPPS.

As a general beverage and necessary corrective of water rendered impure by vegetable decomposition or other causes, as Limestone, Sulphate of Copper &c, the Aromatic Schnapps is superior to every other alcoholic preparation. A public trial of over 30 years duration in every section of our country of Udolpho Wolfe's Schnapps, its unsolicited endorsement by the medical faculty and a sale unequaled by any other alcoholic distillation have insured for it the reputation of salubrity claimed for it. For sale by all Druggists and Grocers.

DR. R. T. WILDE,

The Natural Magnetic Physician,

Has returned from New York and is at home again at the

UNITED STATES HOTEL.

He has met with unparalleled success in the treatment of Chronic and Nervous diseases of every description. Nine-tenths of all the invalids of the country may be either helped or cured, if treated in harmony with the laws of nature. The Dr. never treats a disease by name, as if calling a disease by name and throwing an enchanted drug at it would charm it away; but he treats with reference to the peculiar organization and pathological condition of his patient, thus he never makes a mistake, nor jeopardizes the lives of his patients by experiments. His uniform success for the last seven years in Portland has demonstrated that this is the correct method of treatment. If you are physically or mentally sick, go and see the Doctor, and you will never regret it. Consultation Free.

Get well and you will be happy.
